About Us

A Quick Sale is the number one property buyer in the UK. We're a national company with local associates in every area throughout England, Scotland, Wales and Northen Ireland.

We offer tailor-made solutions to buy your property directly from you. We're not an estate agent which means we can help you with a quick property sale and find solutions to keep you in your home, through rent or buy-back options.

We make a "trade offer" for your home - usually 75-90% of the open-market value - and in return we offer a rapid, professional and trusted service to release your equity with no additional fees.

An honest and professional approach

We appreciate that a quick sale is not the best solution for everyone and that you may be facing difficult decisions about your life, home and family, including facing repossession, divorce or financial difficulties.

Our approach is to be open and honest with you right from the start. Our business is about offering a guaranteed quick property sale, whereas an open-market sale with an estate agent could fetch a higher price.

There are no hidden catches or obligations. We offer a competitive trade price with no added fees for any part of our service, including valuations and legal costs.

We also believe in helping you find a solution that suits you personally and making what can be a stressful experience as easy as possible. This is reflected in our24-hour freephone service - it's always answered by a human, not a machine - any you'll always have a member of our local team to guide you throughout the process when you deal with us.

We've helped thousands of people find a solution when they couldn't see a way out. We'll always present you with options that can help, and you'll never be put under any pressure unless you feel it's right for you.

Teen on trial for killing at nightclub

The trial of a 19-year-old Mitcham man accused of murdering Mikey Brown, who was stabbed in a Kingston nightclub last year, is due to start at the Old Bailey on Monday.

Shaun Daniel Greenidge, of Hilary Avenue, will stand trial over Mr Brown's death in the Boiler Room of the Works nightclub on June 23 last year.

'STYLISH HOTEL' FOR TOLWORTH?

105-bed development and pool feature in plans

The regeneration of Tolworth could include a 105-bedroom hotel, if developer CNM Estates is successful in its latest planning application.

The plans for the three or four star, hotel include a swimming pool and spa.

It would be built just off Kingston Road, on the petrol station site near Tolworth station, and would also feature a restaurant, bar and conference facilities for up to 200 people.

Accommodation would be split over four levels, with the main lounge and restaurant areas on the ground floor and the conference facilities on the first floor, along with meeting rooms and a bar.

by PETER TRUMAN and KERRY GROVE

ptruman@london.newsquest.co.uk

An underground car park would have 60 spaces for guests and further bicycle spaces.

In an effort to be green, solar panels would be used to heat water and reduce the hotel's carbon footprint.

Developers, working with Paul Brook Architects, said the structure would fit with other developments in the area.

Wahid Samady, CEO of Surbiton-based CNM Estates, said: "I am personally very excited about this project as the area is currently poorly served by quality hotel accommodation.

"In line with our 'developing style' philosophy, CNM Estates hopes to create a stylish hotel that adds to the general vibrancy of the area, as well as supporting the shops, bars and restaurants in Tolworth Broadway.

"In providing larger than normal accommodation, and the very best use of ground-breaking technology, we are in a position to create a hotel that can be enjoyed by businesses, communities and local people alike."

John Hanrahan, chairman of the Donald Woods Gardens Residents' Association, supported the plans, but raised concerns over parking in the area.

He said: "It would be a good idea to have a hotel. Some of the flats around here are quite small and a hotel would be helpful if people have guests to stay.

"The most likely concern would be to do with the traffic issues, particularly parking. This area is becoming more difficult for parking.

"What could happen if a hotel springs up near the station and they try to economise with the number of parking spaces, is guests have to look for parking in residential streets. Then that could be messy. There would be no winners."

The plans are expected to go to council in July and the hotel is expected to take a year to build.

Suspected arson blaze destroys butcher's shop

by ALITA HOWE
ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

A blaze that gutted a butcher's shop in New Malden is being investigated as a suspected arson.

Six fire engines were called to New Malden Butcher, Burlington Road, at 12.12am on April 16, and about 30 firefighters tackled the fire.

A hazard zone was set up after two propane cylinders, which can explode if exposed to heat, were discovered.

Station manager Neil Sinclair, of New Malden fire station, said it was reported that people were living above the shop but, after firefighters with breathing apparatus conducted a search, no one was found and no evacuation was necessary.

Mr Sinclair said: "The fire brigade was called to reports of rubbish alight at the back of a shop and dwelling.

"However, when crews arrived, it was clear that there was a more severe fire in progress so the officer in charge immediately called for assistance."

Thambirajan Vaseekharan, who works in newsagents Ayngaran Enterprises, said he was doing some paperwork when he heard a loud bang.

"I rushed out of the shop and there was a bright light and thick black smoke everywhere," he said.

"It's a big shock – I've never seen anything like it in this area."

Mr Sinclair said: "Fifty per cent of the back of the property was alight but through prompt firefighting the crews managed to contain the fire."

Despite mystified customers still milling around the charred remains of the shop, the property was deserted last week.

A worker at Anthurium, a dress and fabric shop next door, said it had been forced to close for a week because of water and smoke damage and staff were worried at losing takings.

Crews from New Malden, Wimbledon, Surbiton, Sutton and Kingston attended the blaze, which was under control by 1.01am.

Violence is a factor in one in five crimes

by DAVID LINDSELL
dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Violent crimes now account for one in every five crimes in Kingston, although overall crime has fallen by 6 per cent.

The number of offences reported during 2007/08 dropped to 12,276.

Car crime saw the largest real-term increase, jumping from 1,170 in 2006/07 to 1,274 last year.

Only a few other categories saw small increases, including the overall number of burglaries, racist crimes and robberies of businesses.

Lisa Gagliani, chief executive of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, said: "It is a concern and something which businesses should be made aware of and there's absolutely no room for complacency."

Racist crimes rose slightly, attributed in small part to websites set up to allow easier reporting of racist incidents.

John Azah, from Kingston Racial Equality Council, said despite making it easier to report racist crime, 186 incidents was still too many.

"For those of us who face it, it is one of the worst crimes someone can commit against you," he said.

The largest single reduction was in the number of violent crimes, down 14 per cent to 2,575 offences, while overall numbers of robberies fell 6 per cent to 285.

There was only one homicide in the borough, compared with two the previous year.

Across London, the overall number of crimes also fell by 6 per cent.

Town centre manager Graham McNally said although the number of robberies and burglaries of businesses had gone up across the borough, in Kingston town centre they had dropped.

He said: "I am pleased with that because it means the town centre has been more effective in managing the downturn in robbery than other parts of the borough."

River race

Minima Yacht Club is going full speed ahead with a May Merrie Round-the-Island dinghy race.

The race, around Ravens Ait, is part of Kingston's celebrations on May 5. Half the cost of the £10 entry fee will be donated to the RNLI.

The race starts at 2pm. Competitors should meet at the High Street club house by 1pm.

Siakar's marathon effort

New Malden marathon runner Siakar Basak has raised more than £2,300 for the Parkinson's Disease Society, after completing the London course in four-and-a-half hours.

Mr Basak has a friend with the disease and his gruelling run marked the end of Parkinson's Disease week on April 13.

Cattle prod used in attack

A man was attacked with a cattle prod in Sunningdale Close, Surbiton, by three men who stole his grey Audi. The robbery was at 8.30pm on March 13. Witnesses call 0800 555111.

Stefanie is on model behaviour

Strike a pose: Stefanie is hoping her looks will secure her the prestigious contract

Kingston woman Stefanie Wilson, 22, is among the cream of this year's crop embarking on a 12-week battle to become Britain's Next Top Model.

Stefanie is one of 14 contenders on the show, which started on Monday on cable channel Living TV.

The series is presented by supermodel Lisa Snowden and will see one girl win a prestigious modelling contract with international agency Models 1, a contract with Max Factor and a photo spread in Company magazine.

Send in your memorabilia

Your memories of Kingston could become the centrepiece of an exhibition this summer.

Kingston Museum's exhibition Festival will celebrate the 800th year of Kingston's Royal charter and residents can contribute their photographs, video footage and memorabilia of the borough.

Museum curator Peta Cook said: "We would love to hear from anyone who has items they can loan us for our exhibition. We want the exhibition to represent as wide a range of our residents as possible and to show how we in Kingston know how to celebrate."

Festival, which runs from July 26 to October 28, will look at Kingston past and present, including the May Day games of the 16th century to modern events such as Kingston Carnival.

Schools set for the strike

At least 17 Kingston schools are due to suffer total or partial closure today, during the first national teachers' strike for 21 years.

Most severely affected will be Bedelsford and St Philip's special schools and King Athelstan Primary School, which faced complete closure today, while other schools only opened the gates to students with an eye on impending examinations.

Stephen Chamberlain, headteacher at Hollyfield School in Surbiton, said he was bracing himself for more than 900 pupils missing school today, due to 50 of his teachers belonging to the striking National Union of Teachers (NUT).

He said: "We're opening the sixth form but we can't run anything else because the members of other unions won't cover for the staff."

Sunil Chotai, headteacher of Southborough High School in Surbiton, said his school would only hold lessons for sixth formers and year 11 pupils, whose art exam clashed with the industrial action.

by MIKE DIDYMUS
mdidymus@london.newsquest.co.uk

He said: "It's a bit of a headache although I can't exaggerate the problem, but with 40 per cent of our staff out it's difficult to open.

"Every day matters to the children and every day missed is a day lost from their education, so we'll definitely try to recover it in some form or another."

NUT members voted to strike following a 2.45 per cent pay offer from the Government – above the 2 per cent limit on public sector jobs called for by the prime minister but short of the NUT's original 10 per cent claim.

Fury over 'deafening' bridge work

Network Rail has apologised over noisy repairs to Norbiton bridge, which nearby residents likened to having a pneumatic drill in their bedrooms.

Residents were rudely awakened by the "absolutely deafening" sound of drilling at 2am on Monday, April 14, two days before a hand-delivered letter from Network Rail informed them of the month-long plans to modernise the bridge in Coombe Road.

Alexandra Milsom, 34, lives in Coombe Road with her husband and 21-month-old baby.

She said: "It is like someone is drilling through your bedroom – the noise is extraordinary and the thought of another month of this fills me with dread.

"When we rang to complain we were just told it was tough luck and they don't offer compensation or alternative accommodation."

Kingston Council confirmed it had spoken to Network Rail after the work "exceeded acceptable noise levels" and said it had been assured that further work would be taken off-site to minimise disruption.

A Network Rail spokesman apologised if people felt "they were not given adequate information in advance".

Up in arms: More than 100 concerned residents attended the meeting Deadlinepix CG0073

Residents join forces to fight cemetery plan

by KERRY GROVE
kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

Plans to turn the former BBC Sports Ground into a cemetery have sparked the formation of a new residents' association.

Incensed Motspur Park residents formed the group and have already contacted 60 sports clubs to drum up support for the retention of the site as a sports ground.

More than 100 people attended a public meeting on Saturday, April 19, and at least 70 households are involved in the residents' association.

The group has asked them to write to Kingston Council to say a change of use, as proposed by Irish millionaire Ben Dunne, was not justified.

Giuseppe La Scala, whose home overlooks the proposed site, has been nominated as the residents' association secretary.

He said if the council refused the cemetery planning proposal, Mr Dunne would be forced to continue using it as a sports ground.

Fulham Football Club, whose training ground is opposite the proposed cemetery, has been asked if it would want to extend its training facilities and use the grounds for youth coaching.

Motspur Park resident and leader of the council's Conservatives Councillor Howard Jones has campaigned against the cemetery plans and opened the meeting on Saturday.

He has accepted that this conflict of interests rules him out of any council discussions on the subject, but argued it was vital to "stand up and be counted".

He said: "We have no need in the area for a cemetery.

"We have got enough burial ground for the next 40 years."

Dozens of residents plan to voice their concerns at the next Maldens and Coombe neighbourhood committee meeting on May 14, before a decision is made later this summer.

Hospital bus route extension review

Bus routes to and from Kingston Hospital are to be reviewed as part of a campaign to improve transport for patients.

Richmond Park MP Susan Kramer, who wants better public transport from Richmond to Kingston Hospital, met Transport for London (TfL) and Kingston Hospital representatives last week.

The hospital supports residents who want the 371 bus route to be extended to the hospital, Mrs Kramer said.

She said: "TfL is now taking the problem far more seriously. In the past, bus planners had failed to recognise that Kingston Hospital now serves a much wider area, including Richmond and Barnes, which once relied on Queen Mary's but which is no longer a district hospital."

TfL will now take a more detailed look at whether changes of route on either the 371 or the K5 could improve the connection without disrupting other commuters.

A hospital spokesman said: "The trust will continue to be involved in discussions with TfL to improve public transport to the hospital."

Firm favourites revealed

The winners of a new award ceremony designed to honour business in Kingston will be revealed today (Thursday).

Kingston Business Champions was started this year by Kingston Chamber of Commerce and Kingston Council to reward businesses making a difference in the community.

The seven categories include best volunteer and best environmentally-friendly employer.

Lisa Gagliani, chief executive of Kingston Chamber of Commerce, said: "It shows the sheer diversity of entries that lots of the companies were ticking so many boxes and taking corporate social responsibility seriously – there was a rich selection of best practice."

Judges from organisations including the Centre for Business Enterprise, Kingston Voluntary Action and London Innovation Centre have scrutinised the entries.

The ceremony is at the Holiday Inn, Chessington.

"How I Transformed My Kitchen Without Having to Buy a New One"

"My kitchen was over 10 years old and looked tatty. I desperately needed a new kitchen but didn't want the cost or upheaval. I had heard good reports of Dream Doors, who specialise in kitchen facelifts, so I decided to give them a try. What an amazing transformation!

As well as fitting brand new doors and worktops, everything was colour co-ordinated and I even gained additional cupboard space. My kitchen has been transformed in just over a day and I saved 60% of the cost of a new one!

I was under no obligation from the initial visit, and the advice and estimate I received were free of charge. There was no mess, no fuss, just plenty of friendly, helpful advice and I didn't need to pay the balance until I was completely satisfied!

Commuters step up for a challenge

Kingston Council is encouraging residents to leave their cars at home today (Thursday), give public transport a miss and walk all or part of their journey to work.

It says walks can be as little as 15 minutes each way and could solve the problem of rising petrol prices.

Commuters who get into the strolling spirit can take their commitment further by signing up to a four-week Step into Spring Pedometer Challenge.

Participants keep track of the number of steps they walk, how many calories they burn and the amount of carbon saved, with the aid of a free pedometer.

For more information about Walk to Work Day or about taking part in the Step into Spring Pedometer Challenge, contact the council's Travel Awareness Team at travel.awareness@rbk.kingston.gov.uk or call 020 8547 5865.

Love is in the air at annual book festival

A problem shared: The celebrated agony aunt Virginia Ironside is among the speakers

A month-long festival for bookworms across the borough began yesterday with a birthday celebration for Shakespeare.

The Kingston Readers' Festival, now in its sixth year, runs until May 23, with a packed programme of talks and debates by writers, poets and journalists.

Festival director Sandy Williams said the programme was aimed to be as varied as the readers it hoped to attract.

She said: "We're here to celebrate local authors and the pleasure of reading but also to promote the town, libraries and the arts.

"It is an eclectic programme to suit different tastes and talks range from cookery to China."

Other festival highlights include a talk with actress Roberta Taylor on April 30, a discussion of post-war British theatre with critic Michael Billington on May 2 and an afternoon with leading children's author Jacqueline Wilson on May 4.

As part of the festival, the Rose Theatre has organised a week of events to celebrate Shakespeare's birthday.

There will be a community art installation for people to write messages about their first love, free lunchtime love music recitals and performances of Romeo and Juliet, which is at the theatre until April 26.

Tickets can be booked by visiting the Rose Theatre box office, calling 0871 2301552 or by visiting rosetheatre kingston.org

Museum staff face interviews

Kingston University has teamed up with the National History Museum to record the memories and experiences of museum workers after winning a grant for £260,000.

The arts and humanities funding council has provided the cash for the three-year interview project, which will see a team of Kingston experts talking to staff about their careers.

In the next five years, 24 staff are due to retire from the museum, taking with them an incredible 775 years of experience.

The interviewees will include botanists who have identified previously unknown tropical plants and palaeontologists involved in creating the museum's famous dinosaur exhibits.

Pair acquitted

Two men have been acquitted of affray after reports of a street fight in Kingston last year.

The jury returned not guilty verdicts on Peter Walsh, 21, of Brighton Road, Surbiton, and Alan Proctor, 18, of Greenway Drive, Staines, at Kingston Crown Court on April 17.

They were bound over to keep the peace for two years.

Vision of the future: An artist's impression of Barratt Homes' plan for the Texaco site (circled) in New Malden

Showing the whole picture

Last week the Kingston Guardian printed an artist's impression provided by Barratt Homes of its plans for the disused Texaco site in New Malden.

Unfortunately, the building in question was all but cropped out of our image, which instead showed, in all its glory, St Joseph's Catholic Church – far from a derelict corner as the headline suggested.

The correct building is to the right of the church and can be seen at the rear of this picture.

Apologies for any inconvenience caused.

Club closing

A popular after-school club will be forced to close in Surbiton from this summer, leaving pupils at Southborough High School without a post lesson hang-out.

The Room Club, which runs three days a week at St Andrew's Church Hall, Balaclava Road, will be axed because the venue is set to be demolished to make way for development.

Kingston and Wimbledon YMCA, which runs the club, is setting up an alternative club with youth organisation Oxygen at Hollyfield School, from September.

But Jonathan Melville-Thomas, director of youth work at the YMCA, admitted similar provision could not be made for Southborough pupils due to a lack of funding.

K+20 gets green light from the Government

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

The controversial K+20 plan has been given the nod by a Government inspector.

The massive redevelopment project looks at Kingston town over the next 20 years and includes a huge plan to redevelop swathes of the town in the next decade.

The strategy, which includes the demolition of Eden Walk car park and the redesign of parts of Clarence Street, Eden Walk and the area east of Eden Street, was given the green light after days of examination in January and February.

The Eden Quarter Project, part of the overall scheme, was thrown into chaos last year when it emerged that Kingston Council had failed to follow EU rules on hiring developers, forcing the council to drop its agreed partner, Hammerson, and retender.

Executive member for planning and regeneration Councillor Simon James said: "This has been a lengthy and complex process which has generated significant interest right across the community.

"I am delighted that the K+20 plan has received the thumbs-up after such robust public scrutiny."

The inspector ruled that the plan was sound, but ordered the council to make some changes, including providing another 500 student bed spaces, include housing at Kingston station and stick to 7,000 car parking spaces in the town centre.

Council planners had wanted to keep the option of adding another 700 spaces, but the inspector found there were still empty spaces in car parks in the south and east of the town.

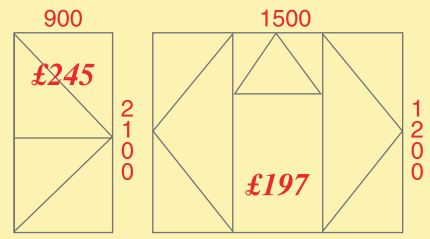

The K+20 Town Centre Area Action Plan is expected to be approved by the council in July.

Home group attacks 'simplistic' survey

A survey of what Kingston's council tenants think of their housing has been branded "simplistic" and "unethical" by the borough's Defend Council Housing group.

Kingston Council has sent questionnaires to all 4,600 properties to determine if a stock transfer to a housing association would be popular.

But Defend Council Housing, which represents tenants, has planned a public meeting on May 6 to discuss its impact on residents.

They have criticised the council for not warning them about the questionnaire in advance and for using leading questions in its research.

by KERRY GROVE
kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

Council tenant Derek Moss, from Surbiton, said: "The way that this consultation has been conducted is unethical. The reality is that housing association rents are significantly higher than council rents across the country.

"The council administration has manipulated both the facts and the language in order to get the result that they want."

Councillor Penny Shelton, executive member for housing and adult services, accepted Defend Council Housing could air their opinions but claims it is being "not particularly helpful."

She said: "They may not like the questions but I have no doubt if they devised a questionnaire I wouldn't like it either."

The meeting is being held on Tuesday, May 6, at the Market House, Kingston, from 7pm to 9pm.

MP urges alcoholics' treatment

Alcohol treatment must be prioritised says MP Susan Kramer, who visited the closure-threatened Addiction Support and Care Agency (Asca) recently.

The Richmond Park MP visited the agency to discuss its current funding crisis.

Asca receives no money from the Kingston Drug and Alcohol Action Team.

Ranjit Dhillon from Asca said: "Since we lost our funding we are living off our own steam.

"We will not refuse a service – this would go against all our ethics. We will review the service in September and if we are not making enough money to pay for staff and overhead costs then we will have to close it down."

Susan Kramer added: "The Government fails to recognise that, in our area, alcohol problems are far more prevalent than drug problems.

"It is totally unacceptable that most of Asca's programmes of individual counselling rely on fees from users, so the service is continually struggling."

Mayoral candidate Boris Johnson also met with Asca as part of alcohol awareness week, and promised to get tough on councils which do not stop binge drinking.

He said: "I am proposing to ban the consumption of alcohol on the Tube and will publish league tables on how councils are performing on cracking

A rousing show

Piano perfectionist Kerem Hasan stole the show on Saturday night, when he wowed an audience at Kingston Parish Church with his masterful performance of Mozart's Piano Concerto Number 27 in B flat major. The Kingston Grammar School pupil got a rousing ovation following his performance, which was sponsored by the London Road school's music society.

Soldier's plaque

Recently discovered New Malden war hero Lieutenant Humphrey Firman will have his name added officially to the town's war memorial at noon on Thursday, April 24. A procession of standard bearers, led by Mayor of Kingston Councillor Shiraz Mirza, will travel from the Methodist Church in the High Street before a plaque is unveiled dedicated to the Victoria Cross holder.

Magic ends

Kingston's Magic Roundabout charity will close its doors for good on June 30 this year, it was decided this week.

The troubled counselling service for teenagers has finally lost its battle for survival, after failing to recruit new trustees who could raise a funding shortfall of £22,000 a year.

The centre, based in Canbury Park Road, will "wind up" its user numbers over the coming months and is arranging for people in counselling to continue it elsewhere.

Chairman Gary Allison said: "We didn't think it was right to continue the service into the next financial year and neither of the existing trustees could commit enough time and resources for fund raising."

The charity was saved following a successful campaign last January, but the number of volunteers has since dwindled.

Missing: Oulseye Olumide

Hunt on for missing man

Police are appealing for help tracking down a missing man who vanished after taking a trip to London earlier this month.

Oulseye Olumide, who has relatives in London and Surrey, was using a beige Renault Megane Scenic car when he disappeared.

Anyone who thinks they may have information about the 65-year-old, who was reported missing from his home address in Cwmllynfell, Swansea, on April 8, should contact Neath Police on 01792 456999.

Staff get ready for cracking good time

Staff at John Lewis are going crackers for charity by organising a Wallace and Gromit week.

The Wallace and Gromit Children's Foundation is the store's designated charity this year and staff will hold cracker eating contests and guess the cheese challenges throughout the week, starting on Sunday, April 27.

Staff will have a sponsored sleepover in one of the shop's windows on Thursday, May 1, and there will be competitions, cheese-themed menus and tastings on offer until Sunday, May 4.

The money raised will go towards helping sick children in hospitals and hospices, including the Shooting Star Hospice in Hampton.

Jewish mothers group together

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Jewish women who want to help in the community are meeting in Kingston next month as part a new group of the League of Jewish Women.

The first meeting of the south London JMums group takes place on Wednesday, May 14, at 8pm, at the home of a mother in Kingston, who has a six-year-old child.

The league is a welfare charity celebrating its 65th anniversary and was set up to enable Jewish women to do welfare work and help all communities.

There are currently 2,500 members around the country and there are over 40 groups, with four in south London.

It follows in the footsteps of JMums Hertfordshire, developed by mothers who want to introduce their children to Jewish culture and festivals in a social and fun way, without being linked to a synagogue.

The Hertfordshire group organises monthly playgroups held in a home for the elderly, plus a baby clothes and toy bank for needy Jewish families in Israel and eastern Europe.

They also include dads and family events, with activities for older children on Sundays. There are also evening meetings for the mums without having to worry about their children.

President Ella Marks said: "The structure objectives and strategy for JMums south London will be decided by the new members, but we will give them the Hertfordshire blueprint and it is up to them whether they want to adopt any, all or different ways of doing things."

New fear: Shop owner Leslie Gilbert at the crossing Deadlinepix KT20510

Fears growing over crossing

Tolworth Broadway's much maligned subway has been filled in, but shoppers and businesses are still waiting for the final touches to be put to the new traffic crossing.

The tunnel was finally filled in a month ago by Kingston Council, after campaigners fought for years to get rid of it. But now shops and pedestrians in Tolworth Broadway are desperate to see the lights switched on before someone is hurt trying to cross the dual carriageway.

A council spokesman said work would be completed in May.

High price to pay

Kingston homes are bucking the trend when it comes to the recent drop in house values across London, with average asking prices in the borough rising by more than £6,000 between March and April.

Figures from property website Rightmove showed Kingston was one of only five London boroughs to report house price increases.

Over-45s get in line for new active living scheme

A successful Kingston exercise scheme has seen over-45s line dance, swim and walk their way to fitness in the last six months.

The Active Living Project (ALP), a partnership between Kingston Council, Kingston Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Age Concern, started in October and has seen more than 700 people across the borough sign up.

The scheme issues members with a passport which is stamped after every activity session they attend and there are rewards after reaching 12, 24 and 36 stamps, where the course is completed.

Pat Page, 68, of Tolworth, had severe back problems from heavy lifting when she was an auxiliary nurse.

She has successfully completed the ALP and now goes to the gym three times a week, as well as pilates and body balance classes at the Surbiton YMCA.

by ALITA HOWE
ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

She said: "It's been hard work but it's been so beneficial to my back and quite honestly the energy it has given me has been fantastic.

"I have noticed a massive difference and I just love it – it's so friendly and there is a little group of us who stay and have coffee afterwards."

The two year ALP aims to attract 2,500 members and is linked to a Sport England drive to get 4 per cent more over 45s exercising in Kingston by 2009.

A directory of local clubs, classes and centres has been produced.

ALP co-ordinator Grace Shorthouse said: "The obvious benefits are that people's health and fitness improves – you can look and feel 10 years younger.

"But the hidden benefits are that it is fun and you meet new people.

"If you're beginning to creak, remember to use it or lose it, and have fun doing it."

Murdoch journal launched

Memories of author Iris Murdoch will live on as Kingston University press launches The Iris Murdoch Review this week.

Formerly the Iris Murdoch News Letter, the review is a journal dedicated to the Booker Prize-winning novelist and philosopher, who died in 1999, aged 79.

The journal, in its 20th year, is available to subscribers of the Iris Murdoch Society and Centre for Iris Murdoch Studies at Kingston University. It will be launched on April 24.

For information on the Centre for Iris Murdoch Studies or society call Penny Tribe on 020 8547 7884 or email p.tribe@kingston.ac.uk.

Thames Water gets reduced fine

Thames Water has avoided £2.8million in fines after the water regulator reduced its original punishment.

The company had faced a £12.5million fine set by Ofwat but, after co-operation with the regulator, saw its fine reduced to £9.7million.

The fine was issued for guaranteed service standards and reporting failures over a 12-month period from 2005 to 2006, with missed payments to customers of under £500,000.

David Owens, Thames Water chief executive, said: "We not only accepted responsibility for the errors, alerting Ofwat as soon as we had become aware of them, but we also voluntarily took all appropriate steps to investigate and rectify the failings and to compensate customers over and above the statutory requirements."

Struck by cyclist into busy road

Lucky escape: Richard Butcher was hit by a cyclist on the pavement in Clarence Street and thrown into the road

Deadlinepix KT20472

Police officers in Kingston are being kept on "standby" instead of tackling illegal cycling on pavements, it was admitted this week.

The claims came after Richard Butcher, 55, was knocked into a busy main road after being hit by a speedy cyclist on a pavement near Clarence Street.

Mr Butcher was badly bruised and left in shock, and only escaped major injury because cars were stopped at a red traffic light.

After reporting it to police, he was outraged to be told that officers would not be sent to the scene.

Despite signs all over the town centre threatening cyclists with

by KERRY GROVE
kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

£500 fines if they are caught, a Metropolitan Police spokesman claimed it was not a crime patrolling officers were looking out for and PCSOs had no power to arrest.

He added: "The officers on the beat, we want to keep them out on patrol for as long as possible on standby. Their speciality is not investigating road traffic collisions."

Mr Butcher had been to the cinema and was walking alone when the collision happened at 6.30pm on Saturday, April 12.

Although the cyclist stopped and apologised, he cycled off again, staying on the pavement.

After two phone calls to police, Mr Butcher was told to fill in a form and return to a station within seven days.

Mr Butcher said: "Luckily the traffic lights weren't on green or I wouldn't be here now.

"Imagine if it had been a child or an old person and they had been injured."

A Met Police spokesman said Mr Butcher's experience was standard practice.

Kingston police were unable to provide information on the number of cyclists they have prosecuted for riding illegally on pavements.

Hands on: Guardian writer Simon Hoggart is taking part in the Kingston Readers' Festival

Simon Hoggart writes political sketches for the Guardian and has a wine column in the Spectator. He was talking about his new book The Hands of History: Parliamentary Sketches 1997-2007 at the Kingston Readers' Festival on April 23. He spoke to ALITA HOWE

Witness to Blair's decade

When did your interest in politics begin?
I first got interested in politics in 1973. I was working in Northern Ireland for the Guardian and after five years there on and off, I felt it was time to move on.

The news editor said it was all very well saying I wanted a move, but a move to where?

Foolishly, I had omitted to prepare for this very obvious question, but the word "politics" popped into my head and that's what I said.

That afternoon the bottom person on the political team announced she was leaving for the BBC and they gave me the job.

I've never regretted it – politics brings endless fascination and wonderfully rich personalities.

What can people expect from your new book?
The book is a collection of the sketches I write about parliamentary events each day. It covers all the Blair years from 1997 onwards, and includes great characters.

I have a joyful job writing about all these people.

I'm sometimes asked: "Don't they hate reading what you write?" But they don't.

Reading one bad thing about yourself is easily compensated by reading bad things about all your colleagues for the rest of the year.

What is your take on Tony Blair's decade in power?
It started with huge promise and became, like most political careers, a disappointment.

They came in believing their own spin. They had so successfully blackened the Tories as incompetent sleazeballs, that they thought all they needed to do was not be incompetent sleazeballs and all would be well.

It turned out to be much tougher than they had thought.

Who is your favourite writer and why?
I have loads of favourite writers.

Robertson Davies was a Canadian writer who I had the pleasure of meeting several times.

He wrote tremendous long, beautifully written, often very funny novels which crossed the world and dealt with huge themes, but which never neglected the importance of detail and character.

His most famous work, and probably the best, is The Deptford Trilogy.

I was given it by a friend, read the first two pages, then devoured all the rest straight away.

When did you want to become a writer?
I'm not a writer, I'm a hack. It's like the difference in the word "painter" which can refer to David Hockney or the bloke who decorates your sitting room.

We journalists just slap it on to order, then disappear for a pint in the pub.

Simon's talk takes place at John Lewis on April 23 at 7.30pm.

Tickets cost £8 or £5 for under 18s.

To buy tickets, visit the Rose Theatre box office, call 0871 2301552 or visit rosetheatrekingston.org to buy tickets. For more information on the festival, visit kingston.ac.uk/krf

Artistic youths learn to Xpress themselves

by DAVID LINDSELL
dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Young people with learning disabilities saw their artwork go on display in a gallery, thanks to the time and support of a local volunteer.

Jackie Peterson, a final year film and history of art student at Kingston University, has been volunteering her time with Xpression Youth Club since December 2006.

In the last few months she has worked with the group to put together an exhibition of their work.

She said: "I've volunteered at the youth club for over a year now and can see how much everyone enjoys the art they do.

"I felt a long-term project culminating in an exhibition would provide the members with a goal to aim for and a sense of pride and confidence within themselves and I'm pleased to say it's really worked.

"Seeing their reaction to their work on public display was a real delight."

Xpression is a Mencap affiliated youth club, providing opportunities for 12- to 19-year-olds with varying levels of learning difficulties and disabilities, during both term-time and occasional days during the summer holidays.

Club leader Eric Richardson said: "I'm not particularly artistic myself but I think it's important the group has access to art and the freedom to express themselves creatively.

"Jackie's done an amazing job in bringing that side out of them, and we wouldn't be able to do it without her support."

Jackie received support for her art project through Junction49, a new website that helps young people take action in their community. Kingston University was one of 15 universities chosen to launch Junction49 last year.

Helping hospital is easy as APC

Argon plasma coagulation (APC) may sound like science fiction, but is actually a new service offered by Kingston Hospital, thanks to a donation by the Friends of Kingston Hospital.

The friends have given £21,000 to buy a piece of equipment to carry out APC at the Galsworthy Road site, rather than patients travelling to St George's Hospital in Tooting.

The treatment is used on large, diffusely bleeding lesions such as advanced cancer, and can stop bleeding in awkwardly placed lesions in the gastrointestinal tract, which cannot be reached by other techniques.

Serge Lourie, chairman of the Friends of Kingston Hospital, said: "We are delighted to donate this equipment which will help enhance endoscopy services at Kingston Hospital.

"Now they have the ability to carry out this procedure at Kingston Hospital it will be of great benefit to patients."

Businesses wake up and smell the coffee

A networking event to connect technology businesses, entrepreneurs and students across Kingston has been set up.

Open Coffee Kingston meets on the first Wednesday of every month at Café Torelli in Church Street from 10am to noon and the next meeting is on April 30.

Depression: When there seems to be no point in getting out of bed

If you're depressed, seeking help can be a frightening first step. Now doctors in Wandsworth are prescribing a DVD which answers the questions you were afraid to ask. CHLOE LAMBERT reports

DVD release shows the way out of depression

Could a DVD help beat depression? South West London and St George's (SWLSG) Mental Health Trust has created a Mood Manager DVD which allows patients to get advice and information on their condition in their own time.

In the first initiative of its kind in this country, the DVD gives advice on how to take medication effectively, how to make small lifestyle changes to beat the blues, and techniques to tackle feelings of negativity and low self-esteem. The scheme has been rolled out across Wandsworth, with copies available at local pharmacies, including in Tamil and Urdu, and could soon be extended to other boroughs.

With conflicting stories in the media about antidepressants, people are growing increasingly fearful and sceptical about their benefits and as a result are not taking them properly.

Dr Chris Gilleard, head of psychology at SWLSG and an expert on depression, says: "Approximately three-quarters of people who are prescribed antidepressants either don't take them, take them and then stop, stop and start them, or stop them early.

"This happens for three main reasons: a fear of becoming addicted, the side effects – which include diarrhoea, difficulty sleeping and more anxiety but usually subside after a couple of weeks – and a notion that taking medication is a sign of personal weakness.

"The DVD provides more information about how they can help themselves effectively, and additional techniques to help them in recovering."

Depression is one of the world's most common illnesses, cutting across every age, class and ethnic group. Treatment is usually a combination of medication, therapy, exercise and activity.

Research shows depression has a "scarring effect". Every time a patient has an episode, it lowers the threshold for the next time so it takes less and less to trigger the same feelings. In other words, it is vital the first episode is treated as well as possible.

The Mood Manager is specifically designed for people prescribed antidepressants for the first time, to encourage them to make a full and long-lasting recovery. Doctors are also working with libraries to recommend books on issues such as anxiety, panic and insomnia.

Dr Gilleard says: "Lots of people don't get enough information about depression and its treatment in their initial consultation with their GP. It is relatively short and it really takes plucking up courage to do it – maybe you'll break down in front of the doctor.

"It's a difficult step to take, to seek help, and there are lots of things you would have liked to have said that you didn't think of at the time.

"I think it's important people know there are resources out there to help. Nobody should suffer from depression alone."

Substance dependence: Depression can lead to a vicious circle of using drink and drugs in an attempt to escape

Depression Facts

Depression will affect one in five people in their lifetime. Symptoms include feelings of hopelessness, anxiety, tiredness, low self-esteem, sleeping problems and physical aches and pains.

If you think you might be depressed, don't be afraid. The vast majority of people who are depressed will make a full recovery after appropriate treatment.

Talk to a close friend or relative about how you are feeling.

You should also visit your family doctor, who is used to treating people with depression. He or she may suggest taking medication, or visiting a counsellor or therapist.

You should also find a way to relax such as gentle exercise, yoga, reading, relaxation tapes, a short holiday or just some time to wind down. Eat a balanced diet and resist the temptation to escape with drink or drugs.

Burning bright: One of the new tiger arrivals with his mum

Tigers in the mist

by PETER TRUMAN

ptruman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Two rare Sumatran tiger cubs, one of the world's most endangered species, are enjoying their first months in Chessington World of Adventures.

The cubs were born seven weeks ago to parents Ratna and Batu, and are the second set of cubs born in the past two years.

Senior carnivore keeper Jon Merrington said: "Born on a grey and misty morning in February, the pair have been named Kabus and Kelabu meaning 'mist' and 'grey' in Malay."

The Sumatran tiger subspecies is endangered because of poaching and the destruction of their habitat, with fewer than 500 left in the wild in the Indonesian island of Sumatra.

Although the Sumatran tiger is the smallest of all existing tiger subspecies, the males grow to almost eight feet (2.5m) and weigh 300 pounds (136kg).

Their names follow the Leatherhead Road zoo's tradition of naming animals in the language of their native habitats.

Earlier this year, keepers christened a rare king vulture chick, native to Central and South America, Tatin – which means "small cute chick" in Spanish.

HELP IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

SAVE £5 LIMITED PERIOD ONLY JOIN NOW!

I was naturally skinny in my 20s and started to put weight on in my 30s. I had my first baby at 37 years old and put on about 3 stone, lost two stone and then I stopped going because I was pregnant again. That was a big mistake, as you can still attend slimming world while Pregnant with your midwife's permission. After the second baby (at 40), I was another 2 stone over weight and actually didn't expect to lose it all because I thought I was so old!

I met a friend who was raving about Slimming World, she'd just lost 3 stone. I found my local Slimming World group and went the following week. My goal was to lose a stone or so to get back into some of my clothes. I was never hungry, filling up on all me favourite food full English breakfast, Pasta bake and still had my favourite chocolate as my treat.

As the weight came off I realised that I did need to buy new clothes but because my old ones were now too big!. Going from a size 18 - 14 the same size I was in my early 20s. Gone are the days of the jogger bottoms and hello to the lovely fitting clothes I now wear. I now have more confident and feel great about myself.

Having been so impressed with what I have achieved and needed a job to fit around my children, I decided to become a Slimming World consultant. I am now opening my own brand new Slimming World group in Long Ditton so I can share with other people my success and help them on their weight loss journey to their success.

Why don't you come along and find out a little more about slimming World. I look forward to seeing you there, and don't forget to bring your friends!

Join a workshop and learn about herbal medicine

Western herbal medicine is an ancient form of medical healing practised the world over.

This safe, gentle form of treatment using a traditional knowledge of herbs and their uses, together with the latest scientific research, is known to benefit most common conditions, including: skin disorders, anxiety, depression, migraine, asthma, hay fever, insomnia, period irregularities, infertility, high blood pressure, bowel disorders, indigestion, prostate, menopausal problems, fatigue, bronchitis, baby and childhood illnesses, painful joints, muscles, eating disorders and obesity. In fact any disorder can be treated by herbal medicine, either to complement or as an alternative.

Riki Davies, a qualified medical herbalist based in Surbiton, worked alongside conventional medicine both at Bourne Hall Health Centre, Epsom , and in the dermatology department of a London hospital.

Now Riki is to hold a 'herbs to the rescue' workshop during Herbal Medicine Awareness Week.

She will give advice on using herbal remedies at home for everyday emergencies and minor ailments, and talk about eczema, asthma and hay fever.

She will tell you how to make your own Calendula ointment for soothing irritated skin, and there will be herbal teas and tincture tasting.

The workshop will take place in Kingston on Saturday, May 17 from 10am to 1pm.

For details of the location and further information call 07785 978 436.

Banish winter skin with a summer tan

Nicky Beach Tanning Salon in Chessington can help banish pale winter skin thanks to its recent £60,000 makeover.

The salon has brand new beds that allow clients access to controlled doses of UV light set for their specific skin type to activate the tanning process and avoid the risk of sunburn.

Nicky Beach offers a controlled way to tan and can provide appropriate levels of UV to ensure sufficient levels of vitamin D are achieved and maintained.

With the latest in false tanning revolution too, the salon provides airbrush spraytan by Californiatan that is a step above the more common stand-up spray booths. Full tanning options include the ultra-modern high pressure bronzing bed with both lay down and vertical options.

Whatever your tanning preference might be, you will experience premium equipment, maintained to the highest expectations.

Shape up those hips and thighs

The launch of Rosemary Conley's new GI Hip and Thigh Diet in January this year has seen record numbers of women (and men) joining local classes and shifting the pounds.

Jan Smith, franchisee for Esher and the surrounding area said "our focus is on eating the right amount of the right foods and exercising.

"Rosemary's portion pots have made this incredibly easy and my class members are getting fitter, slimmer and healthier faster than ever before!"

Join a Rosemary Conley Diet & Fitness class now, and not only will you receive the new GI Hip and Thigh Diet Pack, but also the portion pots free when you join the Premier club – which makes classes even more affordable and easy to attend.

At every class, each member has a private and discrete weigh in with individual dietary advice, and then as a group there follows a 45-minute exercise session.

The atmosphere is friendly and fun, and with lots of social events arranged throughout the year too, this is a great way to lose weight, get fit and make friends.

For information call Jan Smith on 020 8979 2112 or Lucy Napier Ford on 07958 748211.

If you wake every morning with a crick in your neck or stiff back, chances are your mattress is either too soft or too hard. Try a Memory Foam mattress which provides a sleep surface that conforms to your body weight and shape.

Is Memory Foam the Best Support for those Aching Joints?

When you take into consideration the amount of pressure you place on your shoulder and hips if you are a side sleeper, neck if you are a stomach sleeper or lower back if you are a back sleeper, you will realise that visco-elastic pressure sensitive foam will offer you the best chance for reducing the overall pressure placed on your joints by contouring them without pushing back against them.

- Moulds to your individual shape
- Relaxes your muscles and joints
- Supports neck, back, shoulders and legs
- Even weight and pressure distribution
- Unique Air Layer™ for added comfort
- Non allergenic and anti-bacterial
- Removable washable cover on certain models

Halliford School

Halliford School, pictured above, is a small independent day school for boys aged 11 to 18 and girls 16 to 18.

The administrative centre of the school is a fine Georgian House set in six acres beside the river Thames. Behind the house are modern buildings housing light and airy classrooms, a theatre, a new sports hall, library and sixth form centre. There are also on site sports fields with additional facilities within walking distance.

The sixth form at Halliford is co-educational. Girls are made very welcome and rapidly come to play an important part in the life of the school. Sixth-formers all undertake leadership training and have the opportunity to become prefects.

Halliford is a small school where the staff are able to get to know all the pupils personally. The facilities are good, the teaching is excellent and the atmosphere is friendly. Contact the registrar on 01932 223593 for more information.

Holy Cross School

Holy Cross School is offering a six-week lecture series covering the many fields within forensic science. During each session there is a practical activity that puts theory into practice. In the session on forensic anthropology students learn how to age and determine the gender of human remains as well as how to identify signs of trauma. Fingerprints are the ultimate form of identification, still superior to DNA. The lecture on fingerprinting explains the nature and origin of fingerprints. Also covered are types of fingerprints and ridge features that are used in examination. In the final session students use their forensic science skills to assess a crime scene.

Prior's Field

Prior's Field provides a complete education for girls, rich in opportunity, challenge and support. It is a vibrant and successful school with wonderful traditions, superb facilities and excellent academic standards.

Education is tailored to suit individual needs, interests and talents. Small classes enable teachers to stretch and support as appropriate.

The school has an exceptional pastoral care system providing support for each girl, right from the start. A relaxed and friendly atmosphere, combined with clear and consistently high expectations, allows the girls to understand and develop their rights and responsibilities as young adults.

Prior's Field also offers an outstanding range of extracurricular activities, from performing arts and riding to archery and Young Enterprise. Everyone is encouraged to participate and enjoy these activities, adding to the school's spirit of fun and teamwork as well as competition and personal achievement.

Epsom College

Providing the best foundation for success is central to all that takes place at Epsom College. On visiting the college it is hard to be unimpressed by the outstanding buildings and grounds on the 80 acre campus.

An ambitious building programme has incorporated extensive modern facilities into the college ensuring there are outstanding opportunities for all. Exceptional DT and IT facilities, a state-of-the-art library, a magnificent block for humanities, a refurbished sports centre and swimming pool, a new fitness suite, two Astroturf pitches, a new dining room, a new Performing Arts Centre and a rolling programme of House developments have all taken place over the last 10 years.

A committed staff of 98, excellent pastoral care and an experienced headmaster, ensure the college continues to build on the long established house system that is pivotal in a campus-based school.

A new girls' house is opening in September 2008, increasing the number of girls within the college to just under 300 out of a total of 720 pupils.

Originally founded in 1855 as the 'Royal Medical Benevolent College', to help orphans and widows of members of the medical profession, medical ties remain strong.

In 2005 Epsom College celebrated 150 years of education and is committed to ensuring that all pupils continue to obtain excellent results but within a balanced framework.

A wide range of scholarships and bursaries are offered by the college and in particular new 150th awards, granting heavily subsidised places in the sixth form for means-tested candidates who intend to study medicine at university. It is not hard to see why children and parents who seek excellence in a happy and wide ranging environment combined with the flexibility to choose either a boarding or a day lifestyle, opt for Epsom College.

Green Guardian

2008 awards

NOMINATE NOW!

It's time to go for green

You don't have to be an eco angel.

You don't have to wear hand-knitted pullovers or live in a wigwam.

You don't even have to have done anything to protect the environment until recently.

But if you do care about protecting the planet and you, or someone you know, has been taking action to live a greener life then we want to hear from you.

The Green Guardian Awards 2008 are a superb way of thanking people and organisations who are doing their bit to become more sustainable.

Just by nominating them for an award you are showing that you appreciate what they are doing.

Entrants will be invited to attend a special borough awards ceremony in the autumn and will be in the running for a prestigious borough Green Guardian Award 2008.

All the winners will then go through to the south-west London final and will be invited to an unforgettable awards evening.

From cycling to recycling, from working on a community garden to organising a walking bus, from teaching brownies about nature to starting a green group to cut your company's energy consumption, we want you to nominate anyone you know who is walking the talk.

There are lots of categories and nominating someone else for an award could not be easier.

Simply take a few moments to fill out the form on this page or go to our website www.greenguardian.co.uk, click on Awards and fill out a nomination form online.

And please don't be shy about entering yourself for an award.

By taking part you can help encourage and inspire others.

You can go straight to our website, click on Green Awards and fill out an entry form.

Or you can ring Hannah Weston on 020 8744 4223, or email her at hweston@london.newsquest.co.uk and she will send you a form.

Last year hundreds of people and organisations across south west London enjoyed taking part in these awards and were encouraged and inspired to do more.

This year we hope they will all be back – along with many more who want to show they care about the environment by taking part in this unique project.

Don't delay – take part today!

❑ To find out more about the awards, and check out last year's winners, go to www.greenguardian.co.uk and click on Awards.

The Green Guardian Awards 2008 are open to anyone who lives, works or studies in the boroughs of Croydon, Hounslow, Kingston, Merton, Sutton and Richmond.

The awards are for environmental activity carried out in any of these boroughs between September 2007 and September 2008.

This year judges will be particularly looking at what new environmental activity entrants have engaged in since September last year.

The aim is to provide a level playing field for those who have begun to go green and those who have been environmentally active for many years.

The categories

Green school – Primary and junior

This award is open to any primary or junior school which is located within the awards area. Schools will be assessed on what they do to protect the environment as an organisation and on the quality of environmental education they provide to pupils.

Green school – Secondary

This award is open to any secondary school which is located within the awards area. Schools will be assessed on what they do to protect the environment as an organisation and on the quality of environmental education they provide to pupils.

Green Household

This award is for any group of people who live together in the awards area. The judges will be looking at how much members of the household do, individually and collectively, to protect the local environment both in the home and activities outside the home.

Green Business

This award is open to any business with staff and premises based in the awards area. Companies will be judged on what they do to limit the environmental impact of their business plus anything extra they do to improve the local environment.

Green Project or Group

This award is open to any organisation, group or environmental project operating in the awards area. They will be judged on the contribution they make to the local environment. Council projects are excluded but projects part funded by a council are eligible for an award.

Young Environmentalist

This award is open to anyone up to, and including, the age of 18 who lives, works or studies in the awards area. Judges will assess the total contribution entrants make to the local environment. Entrants will be judged in two categories, those up to 11, and 11-18 year olds.

Green Building

This new award recognises environmental excellence in both new build and older buildings, within the awards area which have been adapted to make them more environmentally friendly.

Green Champion

This award is open to anyone over 18. It is to recognise their outstanding contribution to the local environment within the award period.

❑ For more information about the Green Guardian Awards, or to sponsor an award, contact Liz Waters on 020 8329 9252.

Win a guide to green escapes

Getaway: We have 20 copies of this great new travel guide to give away

Ecoescape is defining a new way to travel proving that we can enjoy the environment but leave no hint that we had ever been there. And we don't have to go far to do this – the best places to escape are closer to home than you might imagined.

This inspirational and practical guide features 50 of the best ecoescapes around the UK. These handpicked experiences are sustainable from start to finish. The author, Laura Burgess, travelled slowly and has included details of her cycle, bus and rail routes so readers can do the same.

The Green Guardian has 20 ecoescape books up for grabs. To win a copy, go to www.greenguardian.co.uk and click on Green Giveaways.

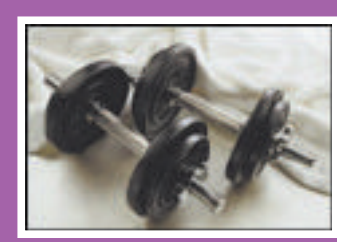

Closing date: May 2, 2008.

Council rubbishes call for collections consultation

Kingston Council has rejected calls from opposition councillors to conduct a £110,000 borough-wide consultation into retaining weekly refuse collections.

If the council bothered to read the local papers they would see that most, if not all, residents are opposed to fortnightly collections. They don't need to waste more money on consultations. Surely it wouldn't cost that much anyway.

Jan Chatfield, Chessington

My work consists of doing public consultation for councils and other public bodies. This figure is absolute nonsense. It's very easy to throw about big figures when it means you won't have to do something you don't want to...

John H, Chessington

'Distressed' residents lose fight to save housing

Residents have lost their fight to save a sheltered housing unit in Old Malden after Kingston councillors voted to sell off the land to prop up its ailing housing budget.

"Kingston councillors voted to sell off the land to prop up its ailing housing budget." Hmmm, so selling off property to pay for property, that's certainly local authority logic at it's finest.

Being clear on councillor's Lidl planning impartiality

Last week's edition of the Kingston Guardian contained a letter from Vicky Harris of Leatherhead Road, Chessington, regarding the potential planning application from Lidl to build a supermarket the Leatherhead Road.

As and when any such application is received it will most likely be determined by the council's development control committee, of which I am chairman.

I would just like to make it clear that I am not the lady who wrote that letter, our names are spelt differently and I don't live in the Leatherhead Road!

Councillors making decisions on planning applications have to remain impartial. By voicing their opinions it would bar them from taking part in the decision making process. I would appreciate you printing this letter to make it clear to people that I have not given any views on these proposals and therefore have not prejudiced my position.

Tracing the soldiers who perished in Ireland

I am undertaking research into three RAF members from Surbiton who lost their lives in aircraft crashes in Ireland during the Second World War.

I hope that some of your readers might be related to or knew any of the men.

I am collecting details of the men, who are more than 300 airmen of all nations who lost their lives in Ireland during the war.

The airmen are: Sergeant Kenneth Charles Nutt, service number 553975. He was son of Stephen Charles and Mary Louise Nutt of Surbiton, Surrey. He died in the crash of a Sunderland flying boat of RAF 201 Squadron off the north coast of Ireland on February 6, 1942. He and his 11 crew members were never recovered and are remembered on the Runnymede memorial.

Group Captain David William Stannard, service number 36119, on July 28, 1943. He was 34 years old and son of William and Mary Stannard and husband of Ursula Stannard of Surbiton, Surrey.

He died in a British Overseas Airways Sunderland flying boat crash on the Dingle peninsula on the far west of Ireland on July 28, 1943. He is buried close to the crash sight in the Killeny church yard. He may have lived in Surbiton with his wife. I understand that he originally came from Aldeby in Norwich.

Flight Lieutenant Maurice Leonard Gillingham, service number104369 was 22 years old and son of Frederick Morris Gillingham and Florence Matilda Gillingham, of Surbiton, Surrey.

He died on January 31, 1944, when his Sunderland flying boat of RAF 228 Squadron crashed into mountains in Donegal in Ireland. He lies buried in Northern Ireland.

I am active with other people in Ireland in gathering the memories of these men who died tragically in Ireland serving their countries.

I would love to hear from anyone who might have known them or might be related to them.

Thanks for getting involved with market festivities

I'd like to thank everyone who organised a Market House Festival event or came to one, as well as Angela and her team at Borders Starbucks for stepping in at the last moment to provide refreshments.

A lot of hard work from a great many people went into some amazingly creative uses of the space, some excellent food and several fascinating talks and discussions.

It all helped to make the festival as varied, interesting and sociable as it was intended to be.

The festival was the first of its kind and the last too.

It was never planned to become a regular fixture on the Kingston cultural calendar but was instead an experiment and a demonstration of the range of events that could go on in this under-used community asset.

Many who came along to enjoy themselves had never been into this historic venue before.

They appreciated its somewhat faded elegance, so I hope the festival will encourage more use of the Market House for public events.

It would be good to see something interesting going on in there or in the Market Place almost every evening, not just concentrated into a 10-evening festival, so that Kingston workers, students, visitors and residents come to expect it and make visiting the town centre in the evening a regular part of their lives.

With events in and around the Market House, Borders opening late, the Rose Theatre, and new restaurants and cafés in the area, we could have a really attractive evening culture in central Kingston, very much in the spirit of the recent Civic Trust Night Vision report on Kingston.

I hope that local people and businesses and community groups will all help to make that happen.

MARILYN MASON
Ex-director
Market House Festival

Sheltered residents can expect a better standard after house closure

The recommendation to dispose of Yew Tree House was made by a cross-party working group on the future of sheltered housing in the borough, which I led. We spent over a year looking at all the sheltered housing schemes, some of which are excellent, but some of which offer a poor standard for tenants.

We agreed a minimum standard should be applied, specifically that sheltered tenants should not have to share lavatories and bathrooms, as well as improved accessibility standards for all new schemes, and then looked at the costs of upgrading schemes as needed.

Many of the bedsitter schemes with shared facilities had proved hard to let and could only be filled by lowering the applicable age and accepting applicants from outside the borough.

Yew Tree House was uneconomic to upgrade and so we recommended disposal, in order to fund improvements elsewhere.

This was the recommendation before the end of last year, so before housing was actively looking at disposals to raise much-needed capital.

The timing of consultation with tenants is difficult because of the need to avoid worrying elderly tenants unnecessarily.

HA senior housing officer talked to all the tenants in Yew Tree House only when we were confident that the recommendation would be accepted.

All the tenants will be offered new accommodation and financial compensation for the disruption and I am confident that they will be well supported in their move.

Ideally, we would only close an empty scheme but this represents an unrealistic delay, so officers will work hard to minimise the distress of the tenants.

Candidate Boris gives off 'the stink of hypocrisy'

Last week you gave Beryl and Ray Broom's Tory electioneering a prime spot on your letters page, along with a tasty "Vote Ken Out" headline in bold.

In the interests of balanced editorial, can Ken-supporting Londoners get one too?

Let's not "give Boris a chance", actually.

The last time his party had a hand in the lot of Londoners, they abolished its Government and sold its headquarters to a hotel chain.

Diversity? Ask a few Londoners about the Tories' "smiling picaninnies" or, further back, about the party's gay-bashing Section 28 legislation.

Transport? Didn't Tories oppose congestion charging first time round?

And didn't they create the very subsidy-sucking featherbed that South West Trains insults commuters from today?

Crime? It's down – and hand held scanners or a bendy-ban do not a global city make.

To advance the Brooms' shelf-life metaphor: Ken – he's not his freshest and there's gristle aplenty, but he's safe to consume.

Boris? Don't buy him, he stinks of hypocrisy.

Headlines won't help

As a Walton North resident I was shocked to learn that David Whisson is abandoning that ward for Walton Central.

After the residents of Walton North decided not to re-elect him in May last year, he went quiet and took no interest in Walton affairs.

Yet suddenly I see him in a front-page article "Buried Treasure" and in another newspaper article "Yobs 'slip through the net' at Heart housing" telling us of his concerns for Walton Central.

Having kept silent since May 2007, these concerns have suddenly come up, just weeks before he is up for election.

After been thrown out by north residents, he clearly hopes that two obvious vote-grabbing articles will see him elected in central.

But why should central have north's reject?

Injury advice

A young man named Dan spoke to me, he plays for Chelsea and is 16 years old. He told me he had injured his left leg four times and said he wants to get back to his football.

I gave him my advice on what to do and not to delay it.

Dan said he would take it – I had an injury with my knee myself.

He told me his great-great-grandfather named Derrick Geconey used to play football and he wanted to be good like him.

Good luck Dan, I hope you recover soon.

Dance school waltzes off to its new home

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

Surbiton's longest running dance school has been saved from a certain demise, after finding a new home at St Mark's church hall.

The Margaret Barnes School of Dance, which turns 100 this year, had been told it had to leave Claremont Hall by July because it was being sold by St Raphael's Church.

After a frantic search for new premises, details are now being arranged for when it can start using its new hall in St Mark's Hill.

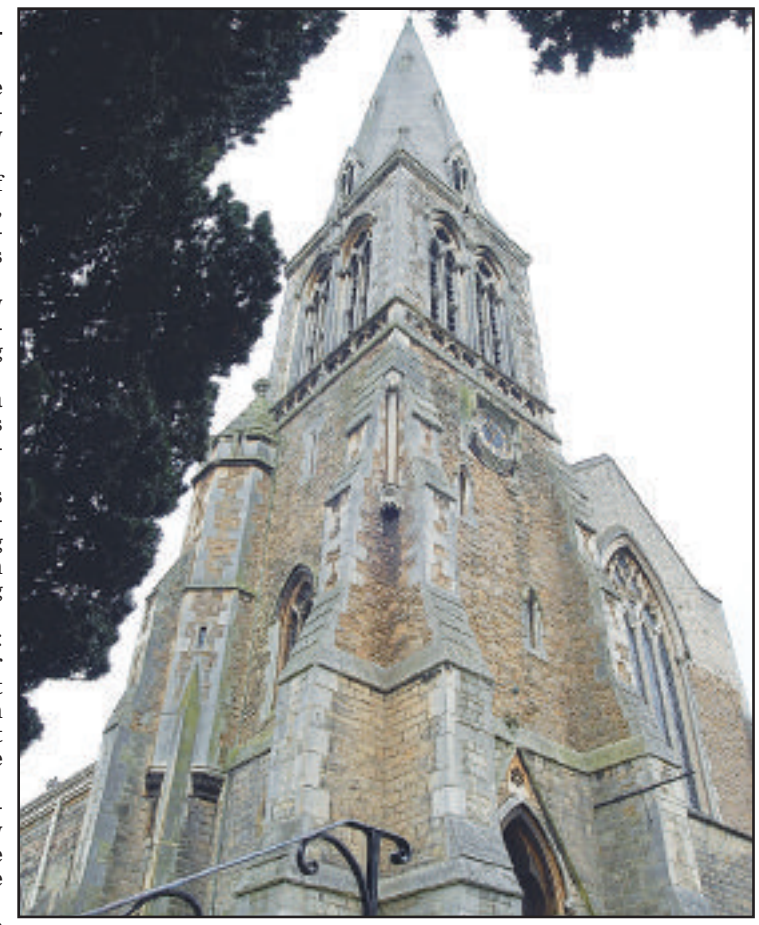

But the offer has come with a major warning, as the hall is planned to be demolished and rebuilt over the next few years.

The St Andrew's and St Mark's sites are set to undergo a multi-million pound development, knocking down both halls, extending an annex to the churches and building new housing on the site.

Reverend David Houghton said: "We are happy to welcome them for as long as we can with the present agreement and we hope we can make new facilities for them. But there is bound to be a break while the work is done."

Dance instructor Alison Coulson-Smith added: "I don't know how long it is going to be standing but we are just feeling lucky that we have got somewhere for next term.

"We'll probably have the same problem again if they decide to destroy the whole thing. We're just glad it's not imminent."

Time to dance: St Mark's Church hall will host the Margaret Barnes School of Dance – but it still faces an uncertain future

A Rose by any other name

THEATRE: Romeo & Juliet, The Rose, Kingston

Simon Fitzjohn

> "What has not changed in 400 years is passion. Themes of romance, betrayal and revenge are no different today"
> Barrie Rutter, artistic director of Northern Broadsides

With so much of the theatre world dogged by images of pompous, self-obssessed 'luvvies', Barrie Rutter is a refreshing change.

Rutter is artistic director and founder of Northern Broadsides, a professional drama company he established in 1992.

And the 61-year-old, who arrives in Kingston to showcase his version of Romeo and Juliet, is typically forthright when revealing his reasons for the choice of project.

He explains: "The pragmatic truth is you have to pick something you could sell to an audience.

"A tour gets set up about six to nine months before you even start rehearsals and theatre event managers go for the title as much as anything else.

"I could have gone for something like Corialanus but that probably wouldn't have got us very far!"

Rutter, who set up the company in Hull, has always had a vision for producing theatre in a northern voice for northern audiences, with the company's first offering, Richard III, being performed in venues such as Hull Marina and Middleham Castle.

But the popularity of his productions has seen the company branch out, including performances in places as far flung as Austria and India.

He adds: "I had one good idea at the outset and to get that out there I had to form my own company.

"Now we are being asked to perform at places like the Rose, which is tremendous.

"It is all a wonderfully happy accident."

And now the Rose will benefit from this national expansion when Shakespeare's classic comes calling.

And for the director, the play has as much relevance now as when it was written.

He explains: "What has not changed in 400 years is human passion.

"Technology has advanced but the themes of romance, betrayal, and revenge are no different today."

Romeo & Juliet, Rose Theatre, Kingston, runs until April 26, 7.30pm, £5-£27, call 0871 230 1552.

The week ahead

Andy's handy

Raynes Park-born guitar whizzkid Andy Cortes will dazzle with his skills as he offers locals a chance to take in his Andy Cortes Trio before they set off for New York. Having worked with Buddy Guy, amongst others, 21-year-old Andy is tipped for great things. Ram Jam Club, Kingston, Friday, April 25, 8pm, £4/£6, call 020 85672004.

Going belly up

To celebrate International Dance Day, Eva Green's Bellybabes dance troupe will be on hand to give a number of performances and offer basic lessons to anyone interested in giving their bodies a workout. Bentall Centre, Kingston, Saturday, April 26, 10am - 5.30pm, free.

We love Lucy

Lucy Porter will be joined by Reginald D Hunter, Russell Kane and Jim Tavare as London's famous Comedy Store continues its monthly residency at the Rose. Lucy will be taking a break from her own tour, Lucy Porter's Love-In, in a bid to get Kingston audiences chuckling. Rose Theatre, Kingston, Sunday, April 27, 7.30pm, £10/£12/£14, call 0871 230 1552 for details.

The sound of Sond

Grammy Award-winning guitarist Amrit Sond will host a special guitar night where he will be joined by guests Roland Chadwick and Michael Buerk. With a unique contemporary style fusing world, jazz, folk, rock and classical, he has carved a sizeable niche in the guitar arena. Ram Jam, Kingston, Tuesday, April 29, 8pm, £6, call 020 8567 2004.

Dear Elizans

With their unusual blend of eclectic, feel-good rock, The Elizans will descend on the Peel. Proudly ignoring covers and solely playing their own material, the up-and-coming band will be supported by 55 Strong and Luna. The Peel, Cambridge Road, Kingston, Wednesday, April 30, 7.30pm, £5, call 020 8546 3516.

Films What's on this week

FLASHBACKS OF A FOOL (15): Daniel Craig leaves Bond behind in this meandering nostalgia piece about a washed-up Hollywood actor, Joe Scot, coming to terms with an inglorious childhood tinged with tragedy. Harry Eden shines as the young Joe, but the film tends to drag a little. ★★★

STREET KINGS (15): Writer-director David Ayer has certainly found his groove – gritty crime thrillers about morally tainted cops who bend the law to compensate for an imperfect legal system. The set-up and its bloody pay-off are all familiar, even down to the fractious relationship between Forest Whitaker's corrupt mentor and Keanu Reeves' sharp-shooting protegé. ★★★

FOOL'S GOLD (12A): This misguided romantic comedy, which sends its cardboard characters on a protracted treasure hunt in the blue waters of the Caribbean, is as worthless as the title suggests. Leading man Matthew McConaughey wastes no time in losing his shirt but there's zero screen chemistry with leading lady Kate Hudson. ★★

IN BRUGES (18): Olivier Award-winning Martin McDonagh's directorial debut is a gloriously offbeat jaunt in the company of two hopelessly mismatched hitmen – Brendan Gleeson and Colin Farrell. The majestic belfry towers and rosary stalls of Bruges provide the unlikely backdrop for a blackly humorous tale of betrayal and redemption. ★★★

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY (15): Mike Leigh's latest is his most relentlessly upbeat and optimistic film for years. Sally Hawkins was named Best Actress at the 2008 Berlin International Film Festival for her bravura performance as perennially perky primary school teacher Poppy who meets her match in misanthropic driving instructor Scott (Eddie Marsan). Happy-Go-Lucky is a beautifully observed film. ★★★★

Brave new world

Cutting-edge artist Marilene Oliver will offer a fascinating insight into her extraordinary work when she gives a talk to coincide with her latest exhibition – Digital Objects/Digital Subjects at the Riverhouse.

Oliver, who specialises in pieces using medical imaging and laser scanning, will be on hand to guide visitors through her latest triumph, along with explaining the influences that have shaped her groundbreaking work.

Oliver explains: "My relationship with the body is nostalgic and romantic, based on an anxiety that the body is becoming redundant.

"New technologies promote a decentralisation of the self – they allow us to project ourselves into different spaces and offer us new views of our bodies that belittle being contained in a physical body."

The controversial artist readily admits to being heavily attracted to the work of author Hans Moravec.

Moravec, research professor at the Robotics Institute of Carnegie Mellon University, has specialised in writing about artificial intelligence and the role of technology in human existence.

X-Ray spec-tacle: Radiant, one of the exhibits at Riverhouse

And one of his central themes if the consciousness could be downloaded to the datascape, what would happen to the body that is left behind? – proves the spine of Oliver's latest opus.

Highlighting the processes needed to convert flesh to pixel, to voxel, and to xyz co-ordinates, the striking exhibition reinvents the art of the portrait.

And Oliver agrees that the viewer must question the work for the display to succeed.

She adds: "A number of philosophical and ethical questions need to be answered. What is the effect of seeing the body fragmented and screen-based? What are the implications of digitally mutating and transforming the body? To whom does the data belong – the patient or the artist?"

No doubt Oliver will continue pushing the envelope until she finds the answers.

Digital Objects/Digital Subjects will run at Riverhouse until May 11. Marilene Oliver will give her talk on April 30, at 7.30pm, £8, call 01932 253354.

Love is all around

Contemporary romantic fiction and its place in the modern literary landscape will be in the spotlight at Tiffin Boys' School when authors Judy Astley and Kate Harrison chair a discussion entitled Modern Love.

Part of Kingston's Readers Festival, the duo will offer an insight into the genre and attempt to overrule the misconception that their work is "nothing more than fluff". But Astley admits she is not overly excited at the prospect.

TALKS: Modern Love, Tiffin Boys' School, Kingston
Simon Fitzjohn

She says: "I wouldn't say I enjoy giving talks but I do do it.

"I'm fine as long as I don't know anybody but I've invited everybody on my Facebook page by mistake. So I'm busy telling everybody there's no need to come!"

Twickenham-based Astley has just completed her 15th novel, Other People's Husbands, released in July. And she says the process has not got easier.

She adds: "If anything, at the beginning, it was simpler as you had no idea how difficult it was going to get.

"The overwhelming feeling at the end of writing a book is immense relief. It is like having a big child because you just want it to leave home."

Astley is eager to defend the her profession's honour and believes people should lighten up. She explains: "Through all literature, the themes are very much the same. It will still be about love, dealing with problems, coping with loss.

"Just because you write about ordinary people being in love rather than university lecturers makes it no less worthwhile. Most people read simply for entertainment."

Despite devoting the best part of 15 years to the craft, Judy has no intention of quitting. And, having recently signed another two-book deal, the future looks bright.

She adds: "I certainly don't want to give up. Every time one of my contracts is up I get the feeling I'm going to be fired but it hasn't happened so far!"

Video stars

Chances are, most bands wouldn't admit to thumbing through Latin phrasebooks to choose their name.

But for Matt O'Daly, of Audio.Video.Disco, it's something to brag about.

O'Daly is one of the founder members of the Staines-based four-piece and he reveals the unusual path to their moniker.

He explains: "I was thinking about a name and I really didn't want to have some stupid one like you see so many bands with nowadays.

"I ended up skimming through Latin phrases and came across 'I hear, I see, I learn' (Audio, Video, Disco).

"I suggested that to the band and Richard said it was the single coolest thing I had said in my entire life!"

Richard is fellow founder Richard Berkshire, who provides vocals and rhythm guitar. Former school pals, the pair originally started as acoustic duo Stones Throw, gigging their way through their teenage years.

GIGS: Audio.Video. Disco, Fighting Cocks, Kingston

Simon Fitzjohn

But, as Matt admits: "We just got bored, it was not where we wanted to be."

Enter bassist Adam Linton and drummer Tom Smith to become Audio.Video.Disco.

And O'Daly reveals it did not take long to realise they could be onto a winner.

He adds: "After the first practice, we all looked at each other and said, 'This could really work'.

"We have been working very hard since then and things are coming together.

The band will be working with producer Phil English (Biffy Clyro, Feeder) in September to record some debut material, which O'Daly describes as "quirky, indie-pop."

"Although I'm at university, and the rest of the guys have jobs, at the drop of a hat we would all pack in what we are doing.

"We write songs people will be singing by the end of the night. For people to be humming your tunes, there's no bigger buzz."

Audio.Video.Disco, Fighting Cocks, April 26, 8pm, £5, 020 8974 6469.

It's Bach to font

Kingston's classical music lovers will have one final chance to savour a night in the Thames Concerts series when the Hanover Band close the 2008 season with the programme Haydn at Esterhaza.

To be held in the cosy surroundings of Kingston Parish Church, the performance will include work by Johann Christian Bach and Mozart.

And artistic director Caroline Brown is relishing the occasion.

She says: "The repertoire is very near to our hearts.

"Over half of our output has been Bach so it really is home ground for us.

"The acoustics at the church are excellent.

"It is not a huge church but it has a lot of character and it is very intimate.

CONCERTS: Hanover Band, Kingston Parish Church

Simon Fitzjohn

"The audience are very near and they are very knowledgeable."

The stand-out piece of the night is likely to be Rachel Brown and Frances Kelly's performance of Mozart's Concerto for Flute and Harp, as Brown explains: "The main interest is likely to come from that as they will be performing on period instruments.

"The harp especially makes a luscious sound and I think people will find it very interesting to hear. It really will be a rare treat for the listener."

The music of Haydn has always been central to the Hanover Band's work and, with the 200th anniversary of the composer's death to be commemorated next year, the band is likely to be in demand.

And Brown reveals the group is already planning ahead.

She adds: "It is a thorough Haydn programme we are giving and a taste of what is to come next year.

"We are lucky in that we seem to be very popular at the moment and are always looking to push things further."

Home-Start Support and friendship for families

Home-Start Elmbridge requires

ORGANISER

Salary from: £19,676 (currently being revised) + benefits, pro rata (NJC points 22 - 27)

This post is a two year fixed term contract position

Home-Start is a voluntary organisation committed to promoting the welfare of families with at least one child under 5 years of age. Volunteers offer regular support, friendship and practical help to families under stress in their own homes helping to prevent family crisis and breakdown.

At Home-Start Elmbridge (based in Walton-on-Thames) we are looking for an organiser whose main focus will be recruiting, training, supervising and supporting a team of volunteers. This work includes managing a family group and visiting families to assess and review the support given. The organiser will also need to liaise closely with statutory and voluntary organisations. He/she will be supported by the Senior Organiser.

- Parenting experience and an understanding of the needs of families is an essential requirement for this post.
- Experience of working with families or volunteers would be an advantage

The hours of work are 30 a week, including some occasional evening work. Applicants must have use of their own car, for which expenses are paid. Pension scheme available. Applicants will be required to undergo training and an enhanced disclosure check with the Criminal Records Bureau.

To receive an application pack contact 01932 235802 or email: homestart@elmbridgehousing.org.uk
We do not accept CVs.

Marie Curie Cancer Care provides free specialist support and care to patients and their families. We aim to give patients the best possible quality of life, ensuring both they and their families receive all the support they need.

Today our Nursing Service is rapidly expanding so that more patients across London can access end-of-life care. As a result of which we're now looking for qualified, fully trained SHCAs to provide day & night palliative care to patients who wish to die in their own homes. You will be required to work a minimum of eight shifts a month.

With a minimum NVQ 2 in Health Care, you will have extensive experience of caring for patients who are nearing the end of their lives, coupled with first class personal care and interpersonal skills. Highly organised and committed to meeting patient needs, you must be willing to develop your skills, particularly in end-of-life care.

In return we offer a good range of benefits, role-specific training, plus the opportunity to work towards an NVQ 3 in Palliative Care.

For an informal discussion, please contact Amanda Barrie on 0845 634 2555.

Test drive your next car from the comfort of your own PC

Your Local Guardian is pleased to announce the launch of its new on-screen test drives

What's better than reading one of our road test reports? Answer: being able to view it. Well, that's just what you can do now by visiting yourlocalguardian.co.uk/cars/tvtestdrive where our new Video Road Test library is parked ready for you to take the keys

TV Test Drives

- With our video road tests you will be able to see the vehicle from every angle
- You will feel like a passenger on a road test seeing exactly what the car looks like inside and how it drives
- The videos are broken down into handy sections covering everything from 4x4s, to sports cars and family saloons
- Compare different makes and models before you even contact your nearest dealer

They take just a few minutes to watch, but if you want to read the full, in-depth report on the vehicle it is also available on our website.

Before you even think about buying a new or used car, log on to yourlocalguardian/motors.co.uk and take a test drive from the comfort of your own front room.

To see our TV test drives visit us at yourlocalguardian.co.uk/cars/tvtestdrive

Drake delighted with return

Kingston skier Ed Drake has celebrated his long-awaited return to the slopes with a stunning display at the British Championships in Meribel, France.

Drake, who has spent a frustrating 22 months on the sidelines after undergoing hip surgery in December 2005, emerged triumphant in four of the five alpine disciplines.

And he revealed the wait had been worthwhile.

"The annoying thing about the injury was that every time I thought I was ready to go I would try skiing and the problem would flare up again," he said.

by SIMON FITZJOHN
sfitzjohn@london.newsquest.co.uk

"It was so frustrating it was unreal.

"To be back out there and doing well is fantastic."

The 22-year-old went under the knife to fix a long-standing problem.

And, despite setting back his career by two years, he insists it was the right thing to do.

He said: "I spoke to surgeons and they said that I could have it done there and then or wait until the end of the season, but risk it getting worse.

"So it was a pretty obvious decision for me."

Drake, who has seen his ranking improve to 95th in the world, is planning a rigorous summer training regime as he prepares for next year's World Championships and the 2010 Winter Olympics.

And he will be joined by a familiar face.

He revealed: "I will be teaming up with Chemmy Alcott, as she lives just down the road and it is good to have a training partner.

"She has had a difficult season but the talent is definitely still there, so we can inspire each other I hope."

Britain seems to producing a wealth of young skiing talent at present but, with most of it fading before reaching the professional ranks, Drake hopes to be an inspiration.

He added: "I think skiing is massive in Britain and we just have to sell the racing part of it to people.

"If people see us doing well, hopefully it will encourage more to stick at it."

Woods sets standard for young talent

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Surrey junior golf manager Terry Casey believes the class of 2007 can match their predecessors and go onto professional glory.

Burhill Golf Club member Casey, father of Ryder Cup star Paul, watched his U18 squad land the national title last year for the first time since 2001.

Banstead Downs pro Ross McGowan, part of the team that lifted the title seven years ago, already looks set to retain his European Tour card for next season after a great start to the year.

Surrey U18s launch their quest for a second successive County Championship title next month.

"I was enormously proud of the team's achievements last year and they are more than capable of doing it again this time," Casey said.

"The team we had when we won it for the first time contained Ross McGowan and they are at least as good, if not more talented."

Casey has overseen the establishment of Surrey's rookie tour, providing an order of merit for youngsters aged 10 to 15.

"British golf is up there with the best in terms of development," said Casey.

"Talent will eventually come through, but you must move golfers from playing for fun to playing to win.

"You have to provide the competitive environment to do that.

"World number one Tiger Woods is the benchmark Casey want his youngsters to follow.

"There wasn't a second Ben Hogan or a second Jack Nicklaus, and I doubt there will be a second Tiger," he said.

"But we have to set a standard and we certainly talked about him with our youngsters to show them what is needed to reach the very top."

Scenic shoot: Archers seek their targets in the shadow of the pagoda at Royal Richmond Archery Club's traditional season opener at Old Deer Park. The event drew almost 200 competitors, forcing organisers to add four extra targets for the Albion round by extending shooting on the adjacent field, where the shorter Windsor round was being held Leigh Walmsley

Things looking up after time Down Under

Malden Wanderers cricketer Stewart Walters believes his stint as captain of Perth Cricket Club will help him secure a starting slot in Surrey's middle-order, writes Stuart Amos.

The 24-year-old helped the club side to a Western Australia Premier League grand final at the WACA in March.

Walters, who scored 228 runs in 12 County Championship innings last season, believes the experience means Surrey skipper Mark Butcher can count on him for some ideas in the middle when the time comes.

"My spell in Australia has really brought my game on and improved my man-management skills. I am really looking forward to putting that into practice," he said.

"Butch has always said that if anyone has any ideas during the game to bring them up.

"I did that last year and we picked up a couple of wickets as a result, which makes you feel good.

Aussie boost: Surrey's Stewart Walters Ady Kerry

"Captaining a side has definitely brought more of that to my game."

Surrey have made several high-profile signings this summer, with Usman Afzaal in particular coming in to strengthen a middle-order that struggled to support the free-scoring Mark Ramprakash last season.

And Walters, who became a father over the winter, admits it is going to be more difficult to force his way in.

"Last year, I think we lacked a go-to player and, to counteract, there have been a few signings," he added.

"It is going to be tougher to get in the side but it makes for great competition for the squad.

"As a batsman there is no better place to be than at the Oval when you are in good nick."

Thrilling win puts World of Golf pair in the swing

Surrey professionals Neil Reilly and Craig Cowper are looking forward to the season getting into full swing after their triumph in the Sunningdale Foursomes, writes Carl Markham.

The pair, who work at World of Golf in New Malden, fought their way through five rounds of golf before beating young amateurs Matt Haines, of Rochester and Cobham Park, and partner Rachel Drummond one up in the final.

Reilly and Cowper have a long-standing playing partnership which stretches back years, but this was their first significant win together.

"We have played at Sunningdale a few times and have done pretty well really," said 33-year-old Reilly, who is attached to Surbiton Golf Club.

"We were very fortunate in the first round as we didn't play very well and should have gone out. But we finished 30 under for six rounds – and we had a putt to shoot seven under on the last green, where we won it."

Cowper added: "We have played together for 15 years, but this is the biggest win.

"It is nice to play together and get a run going."

SPORTS*brief*

RUGBY UNION: Youngsters from Weybridge-based St Charles Borromeo Primary School enjoyed an unforgettable day as they took to the field to play tag rugby in front of more than 65,000 fans at the EDF Energy Cup final between Leicester Tigers and Ospreys at Twickenham Stadium on April 12. The school were repsenting Harlequins after winning a rugby festival held by the club.

RUGBY UNION: Head coach Andy Friend has left an unforgettable legacy at Harlequins, according to director of rugby Dean Richards. Friend will quit the club at the end of the season, after three years at the Stoop, to become head coach at Super 14 franchise ACT Brumbies. "Andy will, without doubt, leave a legacy that won't be forgotten," said Quins director of rugby Dean Richards.

Sobihy: Let's do it for Alan

Skipper Simon Sobihy believes Kingstonian owe boss Alan Dowson and thinks the best way to repay him is with a tilt at promotion.

Worthing's 2-1 win at Walton Casuals condemned Ks to another season in Ryman Division One South.

Dowson has come in for criticism from fans this season and has accepted the blame for Ks' failure to make the play-offs.

But 30-year-old Sobihy, ruled out by flu in recent weeks, has warned the squad they must buck up their ideas and prove they have the stomach to sustain a promotion bid.

"The players have let the management down big time and I think they all owe Alan, including myself," he said.

"Too many individual mistakes have cost us this season and we are kicking ourselves, because one or two more points would still see us in it."

Jan called up

Kingstonian Cricket Club have been forced to rethink their plans for the new season after losing their overseas player, writes Howard Wheatcroft.

All-rounder Zulfi Jan, who has had several successful seasons with the New Malden-based club, has been awarded a central contract by the Pakistan Cricket Board.

But Ks have moved swiftly to sign a replacement, securing the services of 20-year-old quick bowler Akhtar Ayub, who starred for the Pakistan team who won the U19 World Cup final in 2006.

The club are still looking to recruit before the season starts on May 10. Call Geoff Phillips on 07710 459193 for details.

Romero's golden promise

by RORY HAYWOOD

sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

Fingers-crossed: World track cycling champion Rebecca Romero and Olympic swimming gold medallist Duncan Goodhew at the National Lottery pod for the World Short Course Swimming Championships in Manchester

Rebecca Romero insists only gold will do at this summer's Olympic Games if she wants to be accepted in to the British cycling fraternity.

The 2004 Athens Olympics rowing silver medallist will arrive in Beijing as favourite for the women's 3,000m individual pursuit after beating American world champion Sarah Hammer to win gold at last month's World Championships.

The former Kingston Rowing Club member, who quit rowing because of a back injury in 2006, won two of Britain's nine gold medals, setting a world record time with Cheam 19-year-old Joanna Rowsell and Wendy Houvenaghel in the team event.

But the Carshalton-born Romero revealed the likes of Olympic champion Chris Hoy and world and Commonwealth champion Victoria Pendleton would soon forget her unless she repeats the trick in the Far East.

"In cycling it's all about gold – anything less is acknowledged but nothing more," said 28-year-old Romero.

"Last year, when I got a silver medal at the worlds, I got a pat on the back and it was never mentioned again.

"That is something I like because when there is that aura of gold and it is the only thing the team accepts, everyone steps up to that challenge.

"We will be going for gold all the way in Beijing.

"You are only as good as your next race.

"The ultimate target this year is the Olympics.

"Sometimes when you win it's easy to just say we will carry on doing the same thing, but that is not necessarily the right thing to do."

Romero appears to be on course to become the first woman to win Olympic medals in two different sports, but she insists victory in Manchester gives her no divine right to gold in Beijing.

"I don't have a problem with being the favourite," she added.

"It depends on what kind of personality you are and how you deal with it.

"You are being tested physically as an athlete, but the mental capacity is tested as well.

"It is going to get harder from now on. The worlds were a hard enough test, but it is all to play for again.

"Manchester was fantastic, but it doesn't guarantee me a medal in Beijing. I need to go there and get it."

● The National Lottery will play a major role in funding London 2012, with already £3 billion Lottery investment into sport in the UK to date.
